Academic Career

Prof. Dunja Bruder

She is Associate Professor for Infection Immunology at the Institute of Medical Microbiology at the OVGU and head of the research group "Immune Regulation" at the Helmholtz Center for Infection Research in Braunschweig. She is member of notable advisory boards, committees, councils, chairing the MGK854 graduate program and COMETiN mentor to promote Women in Sciences.

Prof. Anna Starzinski-Powitz

She is Professor for Molecular Cell Biology and Human Genetics at the Institute of Cell Biology and Neurosciences and Vice Dean at the Faculty of Life Sciences at Goethe University Frankfurt. Being herself a mentor for the MDC Berlin and Women's Representative at her faculty, she founded and headed the SciMento mentoring program at Hessian Universities.

Dr. Ayse Yarali

She did her BSc in Molecular Biology and Genetics at the Bilkent University, Turkey. After accomplishing her Master studies at the University of Tübingen, her PhD at the University of Würzburg and two Postdoc positions in Paris and Martinsried, she is now group leader of the RG "Systems Biology" at the Leibniz Institute for Neurobiology, Magdeburg. Ayse Yarali is married and has two children.

Non-Academic Career

Christian Tack

With a Diploma in Biology, he gained first experiences in Science Journalism during an internship with the editorial department of the Journal "Spektrum der Wissenschaft". Subsequently, he worked as freelancing Science Journalist, which was followed by a traineeship at a press agency in Frankfurt in 2011. Since 2014, he is editor and instructor at BODE Fachkommunikation.

Dr. Marjia-Magdalena Petrinovic

She studied Molecular Biology at the University of Zagreb, (MSc in 2005). She continued her studies at ETH and the University of Zurich, where she attained her PhD in 2011 with a thesis on growth inhibitor Nogo-A. Since 2012, she is a postdoctoral researcher at Hoffmann-La Roche Ltd. in Basel, Switzerland, where she focuses on neuroimaging of endophenotypes in animal models of autism.
